Quotes From The News

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

PARIS — Rafael Garcia, eyewitness to the crash of a jetliner which killed 130 persons, on the sound of death: "You get used to the sound of the engines as the planes take off. When I heard this one coming along the runway I knew there was something wrong by the sound of the engine. The jet engine was making that noise of desperation."

ATLANTA, Ga. — The Rev. Edward E. Tate, six of whose congregation members died in the wreckage of the ill-fated Boeing 707 which crashed in Paris: "We're all staggered. This has hit Atlanta like a ton of bricks. But this is a community that will rally round in a thing like this."

PARIS — A European settler returning to France from Algeria, complaining about alleged poor treatment by French authorities: "French dogs eat better than us Algerians."

MOSCOW — The Soviet government on the question of nuclear testing: "If the government of the United States will put into execution its intentions and continue to conduct high altitude explosions, it will take on the entire responsibility of worsening the international situation."

NEW YORK — Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon, commenting on his prediction that a substantial federal deficit for fiscal 1962 would not be inflationary because of the excess capacity in the economy: "The reaction was inevitable once fact prevailed over fiction—as sooner or later it always does."

BERLIN — Juergen Kossmala, who escaped from East Germany, telling his parents, members of the Communist party, became furious when he would not join front organizations: "I told them I was tired of living in a Red home."

PARIS — Atlanta Mayor Ivan Allen, after a futile three-hour attempt to identify even one of the victims of the Air France crash, which killed 121 of his townsmen: "I know them all. We grew up together. This is a sad task, one of the saddest you can have."

WASHINGTON — Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., commenting on Senate Finance Committee work on President Kennedy's tax reform bill: "I would rather guess what the stock market will be two months from now than to say what will be in the bill."

Two local mentors were singled out by their O.V.C. colleagues for the award. Named were Bill Ferguson, Murray's track coach, and Jim Harris, Racetrack coach.

Also receiving the award were Dr. Elbert K. Patty of Middle Tennessee in golf, Charles Hughes, Eastern, Eastern Division of the baseball circuit, and Bill Stokes, Middle Tennessee, Western Division.

Coach Bill Ferguson piloted Murray to its fifth straight O.V.C. track crown this season. He took charge as Racetrack coach in 1957, spent one year rebuilding, and now has claimed the championship title five straight years, a feat no other coach in the conference has accomplished.

Jim Harris has been piloting Murray's tennis team for three years and the netters have moved up one notch in the conference standing each year. This season Murray hit the top rung and the Ohio Valley Championship.

Murray's track team, probably the strongest ever to compete in the conference, easily rolled over opponent after opponent. Sports followers throughout the state point to the squad as the best collegiate team in the state.

In winning the track competition, the Thinsiders piled up 101 1/2 points for the biggest score in the history of circuit meet.

Walt Alston's Patience With Koufax Is Paying Off Now

By NORMAN MILLER

Twice during his career Sandy Koufax strained his manager's patience to the breaking point, and now for his forbearance skipper Walt Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers is being rewarded with the best National League knockout pitching since Dazzy Vance.

Koufax struck out 13 batters Monday night in pitching the Dodgers to a three-hit, 6-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. It was the only game played in the major leagues and it moved the Dodgers to within two games of the first-place San Francisco Giants.

This was the fourth straight game in which Koufax struck out 10 or more batters and it raised his season total to 123 whiffs. At this rate, the 26-year old left-hander could surpass Vance's 262 strikeouts in 1954 and the league record of 287 set by Christy Mathewson in 1903.

Not Always So
All this fine flinging makes Koufax mighty popular with Alston these days, but it wasn't always thus.

As late as 1960, when Koufax had an 8-13 record, Alston was beginning to wonder if he'd ever learn how to control his blazing fastball.

"Koufax is a mystery," Alston lamented. "He can't throw anything but one kind of ball — a high one."

"Still, you can't give up on him." Alston never lost his faith in Koufax' pitching, but there was an incident in the Dodgers' 1961 spring training camp that severely taxed Alston's patient soul.

Koufax and his pitching buddy, Larry Sherry, came in a little late one night and carried on rather noisily in their room. When Alston knocked on the door, they wouldn't let him in. Alston became so enraged, he pounded hard enough to break the band on his 6 World Series ring.

Reads Riot Act
He read the riot act to the two pitchers the next day and let them know who was boss. Koufax' control, of his fastball and his evening hours, have improved noticeably since that time.

Monday night's triumph, made easier by the homers by Wally Moon and John Roseboro, was Koufax' eighth against two defeats. And for a while it looked like he might wind up with a one-hitter.

Tony Taylor hit his first pitch of the game for a single, but Koufax gave up no more hits until Johnny Callison singled with one out in the ninth. A walk and Jackie Davis' homer produced Philadelphia's three runs.

Art Mahaffey was the loser on his 24th birthday, making his record 5-7.

children beaming with pride, said he came back from his May 24 flight with "an almost compelling need" to explain his feelings. He said they ranged from awe and inspiration to a present feeling of humility.

Carpenter told the President the astronauts felt their Project Mercury flights were more than for the purpose of human experience. "We believe that we stand to gain more, not only as Americans but as representatives of all mankind, to learn more from space flight than any other undertaking man has made," Carpenter said.

PHONES BRING PEOPLE TOGETHER

"Penny's Waiting to Say 'Good Night'"

It's happy time — when Daddy calls from out of town to say good night to his two best girls. That's what telephones are for — keeping people close, whether miles apart or just around the corner. There are so many things your phone can do. Day or night. So nice to know whatever your reason for calling, your phone does it quickly and easily.
